SAFEGUARDING CHILDREN AND ADDRESSING ABUSE:

We Are All Hurt By Child Sexual Abuse

When someone commits an act of abuse against a child — whether within the Church or in public schools, town organizations or in homes — all of society suffers. For that reason, the Archdiocese requires everyone who works with children to be trained in sexual abuse awareness and to undergo a background check. By participating in this effort, we all say “We do not condone abuse within the Church, and are taking steps to eliminate it.” The Protecting God’s Children® program is a requirement for those working with children, but is open to all adult parishioners or school parents who wish to learn more about how to ensure safe environments for children in our society.

For a listing of the current sessions of Protecting God’s Children®, or to learn more about the Archdiocese’s safe environment policies and procedures, visit the Archdiocese of Newark website at www.rcan.org/charter.

Ministry to the Sick

We hope to give to all the sick and aged in our parish the opportunity to receive the Eucharist. If you or someone you know can no longer get to church, and would like a Eucharistic Minister to bring you Communion, please call St. Anne's Rectory at 201-360-0838 or email: info@sahjerseycity.com

THIS SUNDAY'S GOSPEL

Jesus has come not only to bring peace but also division

Having reminded the apostles and the crowd that facing the coming judgment takes patience, Jesus now goes on to speak of how difficult it will be to wait. He tells them that he has come to set the earth on fire. Recall that in chapter 3 of Luke's Gospel, John the Baptist tells the crowd that he is baptizing with water, but someone mightier is coming who will baptize with the Holy Spirit and fire. The fire Jesus speaks of here is the distress caused by the coming judgment. It is also the fire of the Spirit that Luke, in the Acts of the Apostles, will describe descending on the disciples on Pentecost. That fire will strengthen them to go out to the whole world to preach the good news of Jesus' Resurrection.

Jesus will be the first to experience the distress of the coming judgment. His baptism will be the conflict into which he will be immersed as he approaches Jerusalem and his death on the cross. His followers will not be spared that distress. The angels at Jesus' birth proclaimed peace on earth, and Simeon, holding the baby Jesus in the Temple, said to God: "Master, now you may let your servant go in peace." Here Jesus tells the crowd not to think he has come to bring peace; he has come to bring division. Simeon said as much when he turned to Mary and said that the child was destined for the rise and fall of many and to be a sign that will be contradicted. Peace is the ultimate end of the Kingdom of God, but peace has a price. Jesus is warning the crowd that wherever the Word of God is heard and acted upon, division occurs. Fathers will be divided against sons and mothers against daughters.

The coming judgment forces us to look at the implications of our commitments. As Jesus warned in last Sunday's Gospel, a commitment of faith requires us to change our attitude toward material possessions and to take even more seriously our moral responsibilities. Here he reminds the crowd that those who commit to him will find it affects the way they relate to friends and family members. The angel who announced the birth of John the Baptist to Zechariah said John would go before Jesus to turn the hearts of fathers toward their children. But a commitment to Jesus forces us to change the way we live our lives, and this can put strains on relationships.

We don't expect to hear such difficult words from Jesus in the Gospel. But it is good to be reminded once in a while that the decision to do the right thing, the good thing, is not always easy and without conflict. Jesus himself did not make easy decisions and avoid conflict. In today's reading, he reminds his followers to be prepared for difficult decisions and conflict as well.

Pope Francis: appeal for peace in Syria

Pope Francis renewed his condemnation of violence and his call for peace in Syria last Sunday. The Holy Father's appeals came following the Angelus prayer with the faithful gathered beneath the window of the Papal apartments in the Apostolic Palace.

"Dear brothers and sisters," said Pope Francis, "sadly, news continues to reach us from Syria, of civilian victims of the war there, in particular from the city of Aleppo." The Holy Father went on to say, "It is unacceptable that so many defenseless persons – among them many small children – must pay the price for conflict - for the closure of the hearts and the want of a will for peace among the powerful."

The Pope renewed his promise of spiritual closeness to all those suffering in Syria, along with his call for prayerful and effective concrete action to aid the sorely tried people of that war-torn land. "Let us draw near to our Syrian brothers and sisters with prayer and solidarity," he said, "and let us entrust them to the maternal protection of the Virgin Mary," before inviting the gathered faithful to a moment of silent prayer followed by a Hail Mary. Rebels have been trying to break through a thin strip of government-controlled territory to reconnect insurgent areas in western Syria with their encircled sector of eastern Aleppo, in effect breaking a government siege begun last month.

Fighting has been extremely intense since Friday, when rebels began a major push.

There have been reports throughout the weekend of civilian casualties and non-combatant facilities being hit by artillery and possibly even targeted. Those reports include one of an air strike near a hospital in northwestern Syria on Saturday that killed 10 people including children, and caused damage to the hospital facility.

At least one medical charity has reported the month of July as the worst to date for attacks on medical care centres in Syria, with 43 attacks on healthcare facilities recorded in their count.

3 Ways to Pray Outdoors

Thoreau Style

Find solitude deep in the woods, near a pond or a babbling brook, and immerse yourself in the beauty of God's creation. Rain or shine, breathe deeply and speak earnestly. Warning: Kneeling in a mound of fire ants not recommended.

Marathon Style

Whether it's 26.2 miles or just walking your dog around the block, fill that time outdoors with prayer. Spiritual fitness and physical fitness go hand in hand and can be beneficial in helping you successfully arrive at your destinations. Tip: Stay hydrated and remember all water is holy.

Al Fresco Style

You're dining out with friends. Craft beer has been brought in mason jars. Your grass-fed organic cheeseburger slider sits in front of you. The air is crisp. You're about to dip a farm-to-table sweet potato French fry into the housemade ketchup. Then you remember: GRACE. Tip: Say it to yourself or invite others to join you. You might be surprised with how open your friends might be to a quick blessing before tofu croutons and squid ink pasta.

Welcome to the World!

Say hello to 2-week old Gianna Silva with mom Wendy and dad Giovanni.

A field guide for Catholics

Flipping through the pages of Melissa Musick and Anna Keating's The Catholic Catalogue: A Field Guide to the Daily Acts That Make Up a Catholic Life, I immediately thought, "Wow, I must be a bad Catholic." I'm not big on the veneration of relics, I've never blessed my home, and I don't have a "Mary garden."

The beauty of this book is that Musick and Keating are clear it's not the specific practices that make or break a good Catholic but instead what these practices tell us about our relationship to God. "Being a Catholic means living a life," they write in the introduction, "and not just on Sundays."

The authors write that they intend their guide be used like any other field guide—not read from beginning to end. Personally, I went straight to the chapters on Christian meditation and Catholic tattoos.

But even if you don't identify with some of the practices, chances are you'll find others that immediately hit a chord. In reading the chapter on venerating relics, in which the authors say, "What we choose to keep tells us what matters to us. . . . I still have my grandmother's pancake griddle," I was reminded that I, too, have relics from my grandparents that remind me of them daily. And while my garden may be devoted more to lettuce and tomatoes than Marian plants, I also go outside to pray and feel closer to God.

As Catholics, we believe that our lives embody our faith and that our practices "create space in our daily lives for an encounter with the goodness that is God." As such, this is a good read for all Catholics: Those who want a "field guide" to Catholic life and those who need a reminder of the significance of familiar rituals in their daily lives. This article also appears in the July 2016 issue of U.S. Catholic (Vol. 81, No. 7, page 41).

5 Ways to Create A More Welcoming Parish

By Keith Alberts
Vibrant Catholic News

My wife and I have an area of our church where we like to sit with our two boys. We are not the people who have our "pew" but do have our section. Sound familiar?

For the past few months, our pastor's homilies have centered on the theme of welcoming. One that stuck with me was called "pew hospitality" and the idea that parishioners should move to the center of their pews so others didn't have to climb over them to get to their seats. Since that Sunday, I have always moved the middle of the pew. It's a simple idea, but can have a real impact on how visitors view your church. Here are 5 more simple ways to create a more welcoming parish:

Church Parking

Leave the first few rows of parking open for guests. Ask parishioners to arrive a little early and park further away. If someone hasn't attended church for a while, they are more likely to leave if they can't find somewhere to park.

Remove the doorstops

Ask a few parishioners on your hospitality committee to welcome your guests and hold the door for them when they enter the church. This creates a more personal, inviting experience for everyone.

Church Greeters

Ask families to be greeters. A parent and child can be a terrific greeting team, keeping it fun and lighthearted, while serving in a ministry together.

Welcome children and babies into Mass

Let visitors and parishioners know that their babies and children are welcome at Mass. Last weekend, there were two babies in our pew and it brought smiles to people's faces as they made sounds during Mass.

Feedback

Ask people for feedback. Once you've taken some initial steps to become a more welcoming parish, ask some members of your family or friends who don't attend your church to visit and give you their honest feedback. Take it to heart and make improvements when necessary.
