'The Ministry of Angels'

By Steve Noga
Religious Studies Teacher

NEW!
"Get behind me, Satan...then the devil left him and, behold, angels came and ministered to him" (Mt 4:10-11). In this Sunday's gospel, Jesus' experience in the desert present us a challenge to reflect on living more simply this Lent. When we reject values that stand in direct contradiction to God's Reign—asserting popularity, wealth, and political power over others—we draw closer to God's desires for us to pursue this Lent. In this scene, Jesus experiences real temptations (hint: he's really one of us!) and invites us to walk down a path of servant leadership characterized by a richness of mercy. Practicing mercy—a 'ministry of angels', as the end of today's gospel states—lies at the core of what it means to live as a Christian. Our days follow Jesus' path when we compassionately respond to each person's suffering and we embrace each person's joys. When we give voice to marginalized persons' emotional, physical, and spiritual needs and hopes, we practice this mercy. To draw on a theme from St Ignatius' Spiritual Exercises, such mercying (as Pope Francis has referred to it recently) resists the side effects of the anti-Reign's relentless pursuit of fame, wealth, and power.

At the start of this Lenten season, let's be bold in our willingness to seek the graces that God desires to invite us to experience. Let's ask for the grace to give thanks for the myriad ways that our friendships and relationships continue to sustain us so that we can continue to practice mercy.

Since 2002, Steve Noga has taught religious studies, with an emphasis on Scripture and Ignatian Spirituality. Adapted from a reflection that he provided to Jesuit Volunteers.

The Archdiocese Has Long Recognized the Pain of Child Sexual Abuse

Since his arrival in 2001 and his participation in the drafting of the Charter for the Protection of Children and Young People, Archbishop Myers has on many occasions either individually or with bishops in the United States, with the Holy Father, and with clergy throughout the world, acknowledged publicly the pain that sexual offenders inside the Church have inflicted on the innocent. At Chrism Masses before the entire presbyterate and parish representatives of the Archdiocese, in media interviews, in statements issued by the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops, and in essays and columns, Archbishop Myers has stated that "a Church which spends the largest portion of its resources and the largest portion of its personnel in serving children, can never, and will never, condone anything which harms those children...We also extend our apology and our assurance of support and help to those who have been harmed and who are seeking healing and support."

Beyond words, however, are actions. Assistance to victims, training and background checks of staff and volunteers, reporting accusations to civil authorities, removing clergy with substantiated accusations – these are clear indications that the Archbishop and the Archdiocese abhor child abuse.

What's more, 20 years ago, the Archdiocese was one of the first dioceses in the country to establish a formal Review Board of experts with legal, law enforcement, clinical and investigative background to examine allegations of abuse and recommend to the Archbishop action under Church law.

10 Things to Remember For Lent

1 Remember the formula. The Church does a good job capturing certain truths with easy-to-remember lists and formulas. For Lent, the Church gives us almost a slogan—Prayer, Fasting and Almsgiving—as the three things we need to work on during the season.

2 It's a time of prayer. Lent is essentially an act of prayer spread out over 40 days. As we pray, we go on a journey, one that hopefully brings us closer to Christ and leaves us changed by the encounter with him.

3 It's a time to fast. With the fasts of Ash Wednesday and Good Friday, meatless Fridays, and our personal disciplines interspersed, Lent is the only time many Catholics these days actually fast. Fasting is a form of penance, which helps us turn away from sin and toward Christ.

4 It's a time to work on discipline. The 40 days of Lent are also a good, set time to work on personal discipline in general. Instead of giving something up, do something positive.

5 It's about dying to yourself. The more serious side of Lenten discipline is that it's about more than self-control—it's about finding aspects of yourself that are less than Christ-like and letting them die. The suffering and death of Christ are foremost on our minds during Lent, and we join in these mysteries by suffering.

6 Don't do too much. It's tempting to make Lent some ambitious period of personal reinvention, but it's best to keep it simple and focused.

7 Lent reminds us of our weakness. Of course, even when we set simple goals for ourselves during Lent, we still have trouble keeping them. This can be painful, but recognizing how helpless we are makes us seek God's help with renewed urgency and sincerity.

8 Be patient with yourself. When we're confronted with our own weakness during Lent, the temptation is to get angry and frustrated. God is calling us to be patient and to see ourselves as he does, with unconditional love.

9 Reach out in charity. As we experience weakness and suffering during Lent, we should be renewed in our compassion for those who are hungry, suffering or otherwise in need.

10 Learn to love like Christ. Giving of ourselves in the midst of our suffering and self-denial brings us closer to loving like Christ, who suffered and poured himself out unconditionally on cross for all of us.

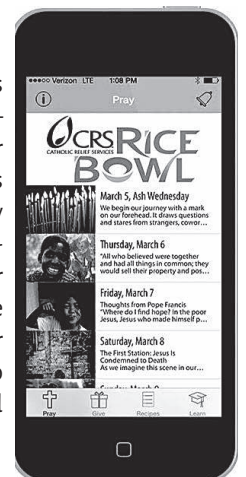

Written By Bishop David L. Ricken of Green Bay, WI, Chairman of the Committee on Evangelization and Catechesis, U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops. For more Lenten resources, go to: www.usccb.org/lent

Critical need for Blood Donations

There is an urgent, critical need for volunteer blood donors as a result of the current cold weather conditions and donors cancelling because of illness.

According to Community Blood Services of New Jersey, which supplies blood and blood products to more than 18 hospitals in New Jersey, there is less than a one-day supply on hand in our area to meet the needs of patients.

All eligible blood donors are asked to call 201.251.3703 now to schedule appointments at one of Community Blood Services donor centers to help rebuild the fragile supply.

All blood types are needed, but especially Type O negative. There has been a continuing shortage of O negative blood donors because they represent only 7% of the population.

Type O negative blood also is in most demand by hospitals because Type O donors are "universal donors" whose blood can be transfused into anyone in emergency rooms and trauma situations when there is no time for blood typing.

Who is eligible?

You are eligible to donate if you meet the following criteria:

- You are in good health
- You are 17 to 75 years old (16 years old with parental consent form, and over 75 with a Doctor's note)
- You weigh at least 110 pounds
- You have diabetes, asthma or high blood pressure but it is under control
- You have not donated blood in the last 56 days (112 days if your last donation was double red cells)

Additional restrictions apply if you have certain medical conditions, been to certain countries or undergone some medical procedures. Contact the Community Blood Service for further information.

Respect for Life

Pope Francis Addresses the Pontifical Academy for Life

The Pontifical Academy for Life held its annual assembly in Rome last week, celebrating its 20th anniversary. When Pope John Paul II created the Academy in 1994, he commissioned it "to study, instruct and proceed according to the principal problems of law and bio-medicine regarding the advancement and defense of life, above all in the direct relationship these problems have to the moral Christian life and the directives of the Magisterium of the Church."

Pope Francis provided a substantive message to the Academy on its anniversary. He encouraged its continued pro-life work even when that requires "moving against the current," and commented on the theme of this year's assembly, "Aging and Disability." The Holy Father's address to the President at the Pontifical Academy for Life can be found at <http://tiny.cc/respectforlife>

Lent

US Bishops Offer Lent Resources

A variety of resources to help Catholics observe Lent is being provided by the US Conference of Catholic Bishops.

With the theme "Give Up, Take Up, Lift Up," resources include a new series of audio retreat podcasts in English and Spanish for the Sundays of Lent, video reflections on Lenten themes, and a downloadable Lenten calendar with quotes from Pope Francis' Message for Lent... and other teachings and suggestions for taking an active approach to the three traditional pillars of Lenten observance: prayer, fasting and almsgiving.

The website (www.usccb.org/lent) also includes facts about saints whose feast days or memorials fall within Lent, a reflection on fasting, information on re-discovering the Sacrament of Penance, and a section on Holy Week observances. The Lenten audio retreats were produced for USCCB in association with Franciscan Media and are hosted by Elia Castillo.

Lent is for everyone. Here: Army Chaplain Father Butera, from the diocese of Allentown, PA, distributes ashes to soldiers deployed to Afghanistan.
