Blessed Sister Miriam Teresa Demjanovich

East Meets West in America's New Blessed

By Vatican Radio

"It's interesting that God has chosen to honour a contemplative instead of an activist for the next American to be beatified," said Bishop Kurt Burnette of the Byzantine Ruthenian Catholic Eparchy of Passaic. He was speaking to Vatican Radio about Sister Miriam Teresa Demjanovich, who was beatified on Saturday in New Jersey.

Born in Bayonne, New Jersey, Sr Miriam Teresa is the fourth American-born woman to be beatified. However, this is the first time that the Rite of Beatification will take place on US soil. Cardinal Angelo Amato, the prefect of the Congregation for the Causes of Saints, presided the ceremony, which took place in Newark's Cathedral Basilica of the Sacred Heart.

The process of investigation was opened in 1945 to investigate the sanctity of Sr Miriam Teresa's life. She was raised in the Byzantine Ruthenian Church and taught for a brief period in Jersey City, before entering the convent of the Sisters of Charity of St. Elizabeth in 1925.

Her spiritual director recognized her sanctity and asked her to write reflections on holiness. Although she fell ill and died two years after professing her final vows, Sr Miriam Teresa's writings still remain as a source of inspiration to this day. The collection of her writings, entitled "Greater Perfection", was published shortly after her death.

Bishop Burnette reflected on the impact of her legacy on Eastern and Western spirituality.

"One of the remarkable things about her writings, I believe, is that she brings an Eastern Christian spirit of unity into the Western analysis. The Western theology tends to be analytical. For example, when she talks about prayer, in the West they had divided prayer up into three stages. What they called the purgative, the illuminative and the unitive. But Sr Miriam Teresa claims that prayer always includes all three parts."

Pope Francis approved a miracle attributed to Sr Miriam Therese when a young boy who lost his eyesight due to macular degeneration was cured after prayers through her intercession. For Bishop Burnette, this miracle along with her profound humility, spirituality and insight are clear signs of God's confirmation of her sanctity. "I don't believe we really choose who is going to be canonized, God does," he concluded.

Safeguarding Children and Addressing Abuse

The Archdiocese Acts to Protect Youth and Children

Archbishop Myers has stated categorically that the primary responsibilities of the Archdiocese are to protect children and young people, and to promote the healing of, and provide compassion to, victims of abuse.

The Archdiocese of Newark requires all staff and volunteers working with children and youth to undergo background checks and receive sexual abuse awareness training. More than 20,000 Clergy, Religious and Lay people have received this training and undergone criminal background checks.

Nearly 95,000 children annually receive safe environment training through our Catholic schools and through opportunities offered to public school students in our religious education programs.

The Archdiocese utilizes the services of a Licensed Clinical Social Worker as the first contact for individuals who allege that they were abused so that counseling and other support services can be offered immediately if appropriate—sometimes even before a determination is made regarding the credibility of an allegation.

A full-time Office of Child and Youth Protection dedicated to protecting children works with parishes and schools to ensure that safe environments are in place throughout the Archdiocese.

RELIGIONS OF THE WORLD

Protestantism

By Drew STUART, MA
Catechist

Protestants make up the largest group of Christians in the United States. The term Protestant generally refers to any Christian denomination which is not either Roman Catholic or Orthodox. While there are many different Protestant denominations here in the US, mainstream Protestantism includes the Episcopalians, Lutherans, Methodists, Presbyterians, and Baptists.

While beliefs, doctrines and practices vary widely across the spectrum of Protestantism, all Protestants believe in baptism, either at birth or at some point later in life. Many believe that this baptism should be by full immersion in water. Like all Roman Catholics and Orthodox, Protestants view Jesus Christ as the Messiah, the Son of God who saved humanity from sin and death. Most Protestants also celebrate the traditional Christian holy days and seasons including Advent, Christmas, Lent, Good Friday, and Easter. Unlike Roman Catholics and Orthodox, most Protestants believe that the Bible is the sole source of divine revelation and authority in matters of faith, rejecting the concept of an extra-Biblical authoritative Tradition (writings of the Church Fathers, ecumenical councils, apostolic succession etc).

While ritual/liturgical practice is the central focus of daily and weekly worship in the Roman studies, sermons, and hymns or praise and worship music. Other Protestant denominations, such as Missouri Synod Lutherans and Episcopalians, may have more frequent liturgical or ritual worship, including weekly Sunday communion services.

At the same time, whereas the Catholic Church has defined moral doctrine, moral doctrine varies across Protestant denominations. Some churches leave moral issues (including abortion, contraception, artificial conception, etc), up to individual choice while others have strict guidelines. Finally, since they reject the idea of apostolic succession most Protestant Churches lack the defined hierarchy (bishops, priests, etc).

In essence, while they share many basic beliefs with the Catholic and Orthodox Churches and have a wide variety of doctrinal views and worship styles, most Protestant churches tend to have non-liturgical worship services, lack an organized hierarchy, and believe the Bible to be the sole source of divine revelation.

A Presbyterian service at First Presbyterian Church in Texas

Catholic and Orthodox Churches, many Protestant denominations only have ritual celebrations for baptisms and communion services (which are often celebrated once a month or less or less). Instead of liturgical/ritual practices, many Protestant worship services consist primarily of reading from the Bible, bible

VOCATION AWARENESS SUNDAY

Survey on Consecrated Life Results Published

In honor of the Catholic Church's Year of Consecrated Life (Nov. 2014 through Feb. 2016), the recently published 2015 VISION Vocation Guide features a survey of Catholics' views on consecrated life, a Consecrated Life Timeline, and a specially commissioned song, "Wake the world with dawning joy" by acclaimed Catholic composer Steven Warner. With 2,030 respondents, the VISION 2015 survey captures the mood of Catholics of all ages and walks of life, including those discerning a religious vocation, members of religious communities, parish ministers, and Catholic parishioners.

With 94 percent of all respondents reporting a positive view of consecrated life, they found the most attractive aspects of religious life to be "shared prayer and spirituality" and "service to others." Among men and women in consecrated life who completed surveys, 96 percent reported they were optimistic about the future of consecrated life. Among the things that respondents would change about consecrated life, the overwhelming majority thought that men and women in religious life should make themselves more visible to the public. They also noted that the church should do more to promote religious life. As one young woman in her 20s said, "The only way vocations are mentioned is if a parishioner brings it up. There seems to be a lack overall in knowledge on how to help men and women who are curious about their vocation." "What is most encouraging," says Br. Paul Bednarczyk, C.S.C., Executive Director of the National Religious Vocation Conference, "is that more than 70 percent of survey participants have invited someone to consider religious life. Ideally the promotion of vocations is the responsibility of the entire church, not only of the clergy or religious themselves."

The complete survey results can be found in print or in the digital edition online at: <http://www.digitalvocationguide.org/vision/2015#pg70>.

Pray for the Synod—Pope

Pope Francis has asked for prayers for the bishops who are about to begin work in the two-week Synod of the Family and invited all families to keep a Bible handy in their homes, and read it often. "For the family to be able to proceed well, with trust and with hope, it must be nurtured by the Word of God" he said.

Mentioning the fact that in the Square the Pauline brothers had just distributed Bibles to those present, the Pope said:

"Today, as the Synod for the Family opens, with the help of the Pauline brothers there is a Bible for every family! Not to just put it on a shelf, but to keep it on hand, dip into it often, both individually and together, husband and wife, parents and children, perhaps in the evening, especially on Sundays. In this way the family will grow and walk in the light and the strength of God's Word!"

It will discuss the danger of lack of government oversight witnessed at the Gosnell trial, the hardships faced by young, vulnerable women with unplanned pregnancies and build an understanding that reaching out to those who are vulnerable, including the unborn, the terminally ill, the frail elderly and those living with disabilities is necessary for a healthy society. For more information or to register ($25), please contact jruiggiero@diometuchen.org or amarshall@diometuchen.org.
